To the City Clerk:

When Karen and I first moved to Del Mar from Tokyo, with our 2-year old daughter, we joined the team of Del Mar residents who spent about a year in regular meetings crafting the City Plan. Over the 50 years since, it has been a protector of the town's uniqueness, withstanding numerous rapacious efforts to exploit rather than to conserve the values we all enjoy here.

The does not mean, of course, that we should fail to act responsibly with regard to the important social movements of our time (long overdo).

But that change should come arbitrarily, with no thoughtful boundary conditions is equally unthinkable.

We applaud your efforts to establish "objective" design standards to guide the coming development at the north end of the town. To do less would be a betrayal of all those who came before us and preserved so many things that matter.

With gratitude,

Karen Reynolds

Perhaps some mention that architectural style should be consistent with neighboring properties and a seaside community (to avoid soulless, industrial eyesores).
